Hotel Mövenpick, El Gouna, Egypt 19 March – 25 March 2010

My wife and I stayed at Mövenpick hotel during this period on a combined birding and vacation trip. Birding was done every day during the morning hours, 06:00 - 09:00 and during two days watching the raptor migration from the El Gouna entrance gate and from the Farm land. Weather was sunny, 18 - 28 Celsius during the entire period. Winds were northwesterly, heavy in the beginning of the period with storm winds the day we arrived and lighter towards the end.

Top of the week was the morning 23/3 at the southern lagoon, where 2 barbary falcons were seen hunting (or just having fun) during some 45 minutes harassing curlews, other waders and a short-eared owl (!). A flamingo was searching for food and an adult male pallid harrier flew north low over the lagoon.

The two days when I was watching the raptor migration were not the best. Most of the birds passed distant over the mountings. I had, though, a good view of a 2 cy imperial eagle soaring in the mountain area.

Another place I can recommend is the Fish farm close to the Egyptian brewery. It is a very nice place and I had several herons there and also pied kingfisher and a stonechat.

The golfcourse was a bit of disappointment. Five (!) yellow wagtails seen during the whole week. I had expected at least a hundred.
