Preface

Visited Tenerife for the first time, with my daughter Nina and her friend Sara. We flew scheduled with SAS from Copenhagen to Barcelona. Delayed nearly for 40 minutes in Copenhagen we landed in Barcelona 10 am. We were in a hurry because our plane left at 11 am from Barcelona. It was a beautiful approach over Lanzarote and Fuerteventura before we landed on Tenerife North 2 pm. A pre-booked rental car from CICAR (Citroen Zafira 1.9) was picked up at the airport. The prize was 150 € plus a deposit of 500 €. During the whole trip I used navigation in my mobile mounted in the front window. In total I drove 1173 km. We stayed at the four star hotel Be Live Playa La Arena in Puerto de Santiago.

I had very good help preparing the trip from my friend Rubén Barone Tosco, who lives in Santa Cruz. I met Rubén on my recent trip to Cape Verde, where he joined as an expert guide. He offered one whole day (20th) for guiding in the northern parts of the island. He also helped with identification of the plants I documented.

During the days, when I was out birding and photographing, the girls were swimming and sunbathing at our hotel. In the evenings we had dinner together.

Sunday 20th

Picked up Rubén in Santa Cruz in the morning and we were out birding the whole day long. At Pico de Ingles I got the only short glimpse for the whole trip of a Laurel Pigeon. A Laughing Dove at Barranco del Espinal was also quite noteworthy. My first much-anticipated Blue Chaffinches were seen very well at Ramon Caminero. I have sought the species on Gran Canaria in vain many years ago. At Barranco de Ruiz my first Bolle's Pigeons were seen quickly flying away when we approached. Canary Islands Kinglet was also a new acquaintance at Ramon Caminero.

Monday 21st

Sea-watching from the hotel room in the morning. Rather large groups of Cory's Shearwaters, many of them resting in small parties on the water. Plain Swift and Canary Island Chiffchaff in the hotel garden. Then drove to Punta de la Rasca in the southwest. Accidentally I parked east to the very large banana plantations, and had to walk quite a large distance on a narrow path between the sea and the plantations to reach the lighthouse area and Roquito del Fraile reservoir (28.007176, -16.683197). It's recommended getting to the area on the small roads west of the plantations. The reservoir held a few waders and a leucistic Bahama Teal. There were lots of Spectacled Warblers in the bush-land surrounding the light house. After a few hours in the hot sun I drove towards Teide via Vilaflor where two Rock Petronias were spotted along the road. At Las Lajas picknick area I got very good views of Blue Chaffinch, Atlantic Canary and African Blue Tit. Drove back to Puerto de Santiago along the western slopes of Teide with very beautiful scenery.

I wanted better views of Laurel Pigeon so my plan was to get back to Barranco de Ruiz and try a few more localities. I made a short stop at the Erjos ponds. A walk at Monte del Agua gave better views of Bolle's Pigeons. They were also heard singing, quite similar to Woodpigeon. At Barranco de Ruiz a Barbary Falcon turned up, a few Bolle's Pigeons were seen but no Laurel Pigeons.

Wednesday 23rd

Again sea-watching in the morning. The project of the day was to visit the beautiful Masca valley and Punta del Teno. The impressive precipices Punta de Fraile, before Punta del Teno, holds e.g. Barbary Falcons. At least one was seen on the way back, but a birder I met had seen a family group of three birds just after I left for the peninsula. Out at Teno peninsula Barbary Partridge and a large group of Rock Petronias were seen. Obviously the locality is a good wintering area for the latter species. Road signs warning for driving on own risk was ignored, but watch out for falling rocks!

Thursday 24th

A last trial to get better views of Laurel Pigeons was a visit to Mirador El Lance, which is told to be a good place for the species. I didn't see any but got rather good views of Bolle's Pigeons and also a passing by Barbary Falcon. Before I left on my trip I knew that an American Wigeon was seen at La Tabuna reservoir. When I arrived it was still there, and I got some pictures.
